Abstract: This article analyzes the modern knowledge of each of the methods and methods of language teaching. Students, applicants and children can adjust any language in accordance with the specific requirements of the structure, methods, purpose and task of teaching in a group.

Key words: Teaching methods, communication method, discussion, language technique and foreign language rule.

Language is the main means of communication without which the existence and development of humanity and society is impossible. Language learning is one of the most important areas in human society. Language, which is a method of communication, can be acquired practically in the natural environment, in the family, in the community or in the classroom. Knowledge of the language is studied theoretically. In this article, we will learn how to use and learn languages by comparing different methods. The concept of foreign language techniques and rules is very common in language learning methods, reading and writing methods. These methods include read rule and write rule. We can also add pronunciation rules to these two methods.

Material and methods: We use various methods, materials and methods to teach foreign language to students, applicants and children. It is possible to learn a foreign language by memorizing words and rules, doing various exercises or watching cartoons, movies or listening to music in the language you want to learn. Today, booknomy books are also very useful for learning foreign languages. From this book, we can learn a foreign language only by listening. It is better to use a more practical method in teaching children a foreign language. Some young people have a lack of positive motivation to learn a foreign language, there is not enough positive motivation, and sometimes there is none. Because they face various difficulties in learning a foreign language and do not master the material due to psychological characteristics.

Results section: The interest of young people learning any language, the development of creativity increases the imagination. In the process of preparing independent tasks, the creative and intellectual potential of students and applicants is revealed. When we teach children a foreign language, if we teach them by memorizing a lot of words and doing exercises, this method seems boring to children, and as a result, they may lose interest in learning the language. It is better if we teach more children in a practical way, i.e. through different games or pictures, or showing them cartoons in the language they are learning is more useful, it will increase the interests of the children. It is better to learn by memorizing more words, doing various exercises, doing tests or listening to podcasts. Because the purpose of their language learning is to study the language they are most interested in and to achieve many achievements, and through this purpose, they have motivated their interest. In order to study, it is necessary to learn the grammar of any language well. Students can also improve their pronunciation by watching a variety of movies or now using booknomy books or reading books in the language they are interested in. The system of teaching a foreign language involves both the teacher and the learner. The teacher is charged with the organizational task of organizing the student's learning activities. The teacher organizes all three tasks performed by the student: practice, practice, and application.

Conclusion section: Learning a foreign language is a multi-faceted teaching, in this process we experience difficult psychological changes. For example, in teaching a foreign language, there is a process of comparing two methods of memorizing words and rules or learning by listening. Various teaching methods and technologies are used in these processes. Using modern pedagogic technologies, memorizing words and rules or learning by listening gives effective results. Teaching a foreign language requires knowledge of its methodology. Methodology and technologies are important in the process of learning a foreign language. When memorizing words or rules, we use books with exercise rules, dictionaries, when learning by listening, we use audio, phone flash, headphones, earphones. Usually, many of our young people think that listening comprehension is a good way, it seems easy to them, but in reality, it is better to practice more words. Practice is the best way to master all knowledge. The exercise gives a positive result not only in foreign language education, but also in acquiring knowledge in all areas. In order to effectively organize the process of teaching a foreign language to students, applicants and children, it is necessary to acquire modern pedagogical information, communication and psychological knowledge.
